Garage Bands Unite

When most people hear the word “garage,” they immediately think of that place where they park the car, store their camping gear and do the laundry. For musicians, however, the garage has an entirely different mission. Along with the basement, it’s a room that most musically inclined people are happy to sacrifice in order to pursue their craft. Nearly all of us have jammed in someone’s garage at some point, and know the familiar tap of a local police officer’s Maglite on the door informing us that the neighbors have had enough.

The garage isn’t just for kids honing their chops in their first band either. Dave Grohl of the Foo Fighters famously converted the garage of his Encino home to a makeshift studio to record 2011’s Wasting Light. The Red Hot Chili Peppers still gather in Flea’s garage to jam on ideas before hitting the studio to record. Which says that there’s a magic surrounding that space, something inherently familiar to most of us that makes the garage a special place for playing music. For those of you still bashing it out in your own garages, this catalog is for you—be sure to check out all the great gear inside as well as articles that will help you make the most of your garage jams!

On the Cover:

TAYLOR HAWKINS

Our June catalog features Foo Fighters drummer Taylor Hawkins with his new Gretsch Signature snare drum. Read our interview with Taylor starting on page 20 to learn how his signature snare came about and much more.

Foo Fighters'

INTRODUCES HIS SIGNATURE

SNARE

By Jarred Tibbetts,
Musician's Friend Staff Writer

If you flip on any rock station right now, there's a good chance you'll hear a Foo Fighters song. You'll probably know the words, and before long, you'll be air drumming along and banging your head. For nearly two decades, the man inspiring your steering-wheel drum solos and keeping the hook-heavy rock anthems in time has been Taylor Hawkins. New for 2013, Gretsch has created a signature snare that captures his sound, the backbone of the Foo Fighters. We caught up with Taylor between rehearsals for his performance at Rush's Rock and Roll Hall of Fame induction and discussed the inspiration behind the snare, his evolution as a drummer and his lack of patience when it comes to tuning his drums.

Musician's Friend: Tell us how your new Gretsch signature snare drum came about.

Taylor Hawkins: Gretsch came to me and said "Do you want to do a signature snare?" And I was like, "Well, I guess." I didn't really have a "signature" snare, but I did find one that I liked that I used all the time. So basically we modeled it after that. I just liked the way it sounded. They sent me a couple of prototypes based on that snare. Well, me and my drum tech, Yeti. His name's actually Chad, but we call him Yeti because he's a big man, big dude.

MF: What is it about Gretsch drums that you like? What made you decide to switch back in 2007?

TH: I used them in the studio all the time, whenever we would do session work or something. There are all these different people that do drum rentals for albums, basically a bunch of older, classic kits—'60s Ludwig kits, Gretsch kits, that kind of thing. So I just found that I kept using these Gretsch kits. I liked the way they sounded. Phil Collins plays Gretsch. I always thought that was cool. But I just kept going back to Gretsch every time we would record. So I was like, fk it man, why don't I just play Gretsch?

MF: Do you experiment a lot when you go in to record or do you find your sound and just roll with that?

TH: It depends. When we did our last record I was just one of three drummers in the room. There was Butch Vig, who's a drummer and a producer, Dave Grohl, who's the guitar player, singer, writer and, first and foremost, a drummer, really. So I'll tell them if I'm hearing something. There have been times where I've said, "Let's try this" and it really works. But when you're a drummer and you're in the studio, for the most part your job is to make the songwriter happy and somehow get to his vision. When your chief songwriter is a drummer as well, he's even got a slightly more in-tune version of what he might want to hear.

MF: How does your setup in Foo Fighters differ from Coattail Riders or any another project you're a part of?

TH: That usually comes down to economics to a certain degree, because with Foo Fighters I can bring anything I want. I can bring fg timpani drums. You can do anything within reason.

When you're doing something like the Coattail Riders or other little things I do for fun on the side like Chevy Metal, I usually go really small. Small four-piece drum kit, two crashes and a ride, maybe a cowbell. I always like to have a little something to kind of throw people's ear off for a second. Some little bit of color.

MF: Somewhere between when Wasting Light came out and when you were doing Sound City Players you decided to go without the bottom head on your toms.

TH: That was kind of a progression. When I started the Wasting Light tour, it was kind of like Neal Peart's kit. My main toms had bottom heads and the other ones were just concert toms. I got a perverse sort of humor out of it because most people look at them and go, "Why are you doing that?"

But I will tell you our sound engineer, he loves it because it basically subtracts one element of the tuning process. A lot of times when you're out there line-checking you're going "duum, duum," and you're getting a "wwwrrrm." You have to adjust and tweak and tune the bottom head.

Maybe the bottom head's too loose, whatever. I don't know st about tuning. I wish I did, but I still don't after all these years. I'm too ADD for it. I'm like, "All right, fr. Just crank it up. Let's go." Sound City I did it and made all the other drummers play it. I know all the other drummers and they all kind of laughed. They just know it's me, you know.

A lot of my favorite drummers came from a period where they were playing concert toms and I like the way those drums sounded. I love Phil Collins' drum sound. And I'll tell you, you sit behind them sometimes and you go, "These sound like st," but then you go out in the house and they just cut through. Just one note and it's all punch. When you've got walls of guitars and difficult rooms, big echo chambers and st, what you really need the most is just a direct punch. So they really work that way.

"I always like to have a little something to kind of throw people's ear off for a second, some little bit of color."

MF: Because you were playing behind, what, four guitar players at a time for Sound City? And in Foo Fighters you've got three.

TH: Dave likes to add a guitar player every tour. [laughs]

MF: Right before you joined Foo Fighters you played with Alanis Morissette.

TH: I did? [laughs]

MF: What were some of the adjustments you had to make with that transition, if any?

TH: When you're a kid—I don't know about everybody else, maybe only I was like this—but when I first started playing drums I set my drum set up like Roger Taylor. I wanted to be Roger Taylor. I wanted to wear my hair like Roger Taylor. I wanted to BE fg Roger Taylor. After that, I discovered early U2, the first couple of U2 records, War, October, Boy. I wanted to be Larry Mullen, Jr. I set my drums up like Larry Mullen, Jr. I played—thought I played—like him. Then I wanted to be Stewart Copeland somewhere in there. Set my drums up like Stewart Copeland. Played like Stewart Copeland. That's the one that really fit me personally. I mean, I'm not by any means as creative or as amazing as Stewart Copeland, but that was probably the one that stuck with me the most.

After that I got into Neal Peart. I set my drums up like Neal Peart. Tried to play like Neal Peart. My point is I tried to be all these drummers for a year or whatever and then I would get into something else. Then in high school I discovered Jane's Addiction and they saved rock and roll, man. They're like amazing musicians, yet they'll fg burn your house down, too. And they looked like freaks. Your parents would hate this band. They're everything rock and roll should be. So I wanted to be Stephen Perkins. I got into that sort of syncopated, tribal-y kind of funk thing.

That kind of spread over to when I joined Alanis. With Alanis I adopted that sort of style for her music, which actually fit good because her music was sort of dance-y or had like—I don't know what you would call it. Hip-hoppy little drum beats under her poetry and whatever.

After that I joined the Foo Fighters and it was just so completely the other way around. It's like one second you're doing funky, syncopated little groovy beats. Next thing you know you're doing slamming, fast-paced straight, tight, crisp punk rock-pop. At first it was a major adjustment. But Dave had the foresight to know that I could eventually get there and make it comfortable, but it took me a long time.

It's funny, though, when you look back at all of the things that you loved and you tried to be when you were a kid, all of that's in there somewhere, rolled into one with whatever natural instincts I have. I think that's what everybody is to a certain degree.

Gretsch Taylor Hawkins Signature Snare Drum
H95548 $249.99

I'm still such a super fan. I still get really excited about a drummer and almost try and see what I can steal off him, you know what I mean? I see Jon Theodore play drums and I'm just like, "I'm going to steal something. Sorry, bro." [laughs] "I don't know what I'm taking, but I'm taking something." The guy from The Killers (Ronnie Vannucci Jr.), I love him. I think he's a great drummer. He's like the new Bun E. Carlos to me. You don't really hear it on the records, either. They're buried under a lot of keyboards. But when you see him play live, you're like, "Oh, you're great."

MF: Do you have any advice for those bands still jamming in the garage, hoping to get a name for themselves?

TH: One thing I always tell kids starting bands is learn as many songs as you can and play live as much as possible. Write songs all the time and keep writing and learn that craft, but part of learning that craft is learning other people's stuff. I remember seeing this picture of these lists of songs that Van Halen used to have in their practice room, because they played everybody's backyard party and shit back in the early '70s. They would do everything from current rock hits, Deep Purple or whatever, to Frank Sinatra songs. You can imagine David Lee Roth doing that. They would do them their own style and they literally had like 350 songs on the wall. That's how they got so good, I think, because they were just playing all that.

"I still get really excited about a drummer and almost like try to see what I can steal off him, you know what I mean?"

If I could go back to my 13-year-old self right now I'd say, "Keep working on songs with your buddies. They're going to be really bad. They're going to be lame. You don't know st about anything yet, but you can learn the craft and while you're at it, learn every song that's on rock radio right now and then go learn some of your parents' old songs. Learn all the stuff so you can play every dance, every birthday party, every Bar Mitzvah, every whatever." That's how you get good.

Trick's 5.0 (P1V6) is available to fit most major brands of double pedals.

The key component to any fine piece of machinery is precision. Traditionally the driveshaft has been the weak link in mass produced double pedal set-ups. No longer, Trick introduces our version 5.0 (P1V6) zero backlash, free-floating driveshaft.

This is the one piece of hardware you can add to your current double pedal that will noticeably improve its performance.

AXIS Pedals feature the Variable Drive Lever — allowing the player to obtain the feel of ANY type of pedal with one simple adjustment. The SONIC HAMMER original "Beater Forward" design substantially increases the power of the AXIS LONGBOARDS® A without making it feel heavier, resulting in an increase of both speed and punch from both heel-up and heel-down player. The Variable Drive Lever changes the ratio of the footboard movement to the arc of the beater.

The Jojo Mayer Hoop Crasher

Designed by Jojo Mayer, this dual-ring effects device offers incredible versatility and a massive palette of sound. Made from premium B20 Bronze hi-hats, the top flotation ring is punched with 32 holes for lightness and lift, while the heavier bottom ring is designed with X-Celerator Air-Wave lip to minimize contact with the snare head. So you can use it without changing the sound of your snare, allowing you to dial in as much or as little effect as you want. The sound possibilities are endless.

Don't be fooled by imitators. There's nothing else like it.

Putting the band back in the garage

by John McVarish, Musician's Friend Staff Writer

Imagine your group or family's musical equipment, always plugged in and ready to jam. Anytime inspiration strikes or the team is available, you just turn on and rock out. That sounds nice, but most of us can't devote a whole room in our homes for band rehearsals. If you have a garage though, there might be an opportunity to arrange a convenient practice space there. The problem is that the garage will probably already be full of everyone's stuff, if not a car or two.

One of the pleasures of being a musician is the pursuit of the perfect sound and setup. When you're onstage, you have your carefully chosen live rig and hopefully a decent house PA. If you handle your own sound reinforcement, then you've certainly put a lot of research and effort into finding the right features, convenience and value.

Shopping for rehearsal space gear can be just as fun, albeit with a different list of requirements. What you choose depends on your budget, how much space you have, the noise-level you should respect and whether you're able to leave everything set up. Fortunately, technology is on our side. The trend in musical equipment is to squeeze more and more features into ever-smaller and even less expensive packages.

As we say goodbye to the days of tall stacks, high volumes and noise complaints, let's consider some new and impressive gear that will make sharing the garage to make music an achievable dream.

To E-Kit Or Not To E-Kit

Ludwig Breakbeats by Questlove 4-Piece Shell Pack

Here's a garage-friendly kit designed by Ahmir "Questlove" Thompson that stores easily and delivers a rough-and-ready sound despite its sub-compact size. Created for sonic punch and portability it includes 4 pieces: a 16 x 14" bass drum, a 13 x 13" floor tom, a 10 x 7" tom and a matching 14 x 5" snare, all in Azure Sparkle that'll brighten your windowless garage. It comes with a bass drum lift that gets the kit to full-size playable height or that can be left off for younger players.

Shell-size Bass and Guitar Amps

TC Electronic BG250 Combo

The preamp includes an integrated tuner, TubeDrive, intelligent Bass Tone controls and balanced XLR out. An amazing effects section called TonePrint lets you swap effects at any time. Simply connect the amp to a computer via a USB cable or beam the effect from your smartphone straight into this combo using the TonePrint iOS and Android app.

483711. . .MSRP $789.99 $599⁹⁹

Where Are The Garage Keys?

Roland KC-60 Keyboard Amp

Keyboards require a full-frequency amp. This garage-friendly model is the most compact in Roland's KC series, yet still has enough power to compete with a small drum kit. Its 40W power section drives a 10" speaker with 3 separate channels that include 1/4" line, XLR mic, and aux inputs so you can easily mix different sound sources. Rotary controls adjust channel and headphone outputs plus low and hi EQ. Also, there's even a subwoofer output that offers big bottom-end potential if needed.

HANDS-ON REVIEW

Simmons SD1000KIT

Versatile and great-sounding electronic drum kit on a budget

By Reek Havok, Harmony Central contributing editor

The new Simmons SD1000KIT represents the newest addition to the Simmons family and features a full five-piece kit with 3 tom pads, dual-zone snare pad, hi-hat and crash cymbal pads and a dual-zone ride cymbal. All of this mounts to a surprisingly sturdy and attractive rack, and comes with almost everything you need to get started, including a couple of sticks. You will need a bass drum pedal and drum throne but otherwise, this is a complete set that's ready to rock.

Brains of the Operation

The SD1000 sound module, or "brain," is equipped with an amazingly large amount of buttons, making programming far faster and easier. This 10 trigger input module features dedicated buttons for triggering and selecting each drum, buttons for the sequencer section (more on this below) and buttons to edit the kits. All parameters, including kit selection, can be adjusted using the large rotary knob or the + and - buttons. The large blue backlit LCD screen is easy to read under any lighting condition.

Simmons took an interesting approach to the connectivity with the SDS1000KIT, providing a prewired multi-pin connector for the brain, complete with individual leads for the pads. Each cable is optimally sized to provide a tidy look, and the cables are individually labeled, making setup a breeze.

Sounds Like Fun

The SD1000 sound module has over 500 sounds that will suit a wide range of musical styles. The sounds are fresh and modern and just scrolling through them in kit edit mode allowed me to quickly identify many useful and inspiring sounds. With the wide selection and variety of drum sets, plus the percussion and sound effects, the SD1000 KIT gives you more than enough sounds to suit a variety of gigs. Plus, the SD1000 sound module features an SD Card memory slot to save and back-up your custom user-kits.

Sequentially Speaking

One of the more unique features of this new Simmons kit is the built-in 7-track sequencer. Simmons' approach lets you build the ideal MIDI track (or you can download one) and load it directly into the brain via USB. Even though the SD1000 is a drum module, there are a variety of sounds for use with the sequencer. For best results, use the SD1000 while sequencing. The sounds include piano, organ, synth and rock guitars. These can be very useful and are a surprising addition for a drum brain, especially at this price point!

Rack 'Em Up!

The kit comes complete with a sturdy three-section, blue-anodized rack that folds up into a very compact bundle featuring large plastic clamps. The clamps include oversized wing nuts and assembles easily by hand, without the need for tools. Slots in the bars slip into grooves in the rack, eliminating any slipping or twisting during play. In addition, a variety of memory lock rings are provided that can be added to hold everything in place for the pounding you are sure to provide.

Now Hear This

The SD1000 sound module is equipped with an input for another audio source like an MP3 player or monitor feed, plus there is MIDI In and Out via USB or 5-Pin connector. The MIDI output makes it the ideal input controller for your home studio where it would be more advantageous to have a real drummer play using either the built in sounds or triggering any number of software-based drum programs.

Time for a Beating

The new rubber pads feature both single (toms) and dual trigger (snare) versions with a nice thick and solid feel to them. The bass drum pad is extra soft with a good amount of give like a real bass drum. Playing the kit, I found the pads felt good and the stand was very secure and stable. The large variety of drum kits were fun to play with well-matched sounds making this a great instrument right out of the box.

In the End

The SD1000KIT is a great entry and mid-level electronic drum kit. The solid construction, well-implemented sound selection and built-in sequencer function allow the SD1000KIT to be a very versatile unit not only as a stand-alone drum set, but also as an addition to your acoustic set. Think about it. For under $700, you get a drum brain with 500+ sounds, a complement of pads, a stand and all mounts and cables. Add this to your acoustic set and you have extra toms, snares, percussion and more for your songs, and the ability to play along with the sequencer tracks and record your new parts.

In addition, the SD1000KIT would make a great practice kit for home or to take to someone's studio when an acoustic kit might not work for size and noise factors. I also see the sequencer functions in the SD1000 providing an amazingly powerful platform for education, using the built in songs and adjusting tempo and recording your playing to catalog your progress. For price and performance, the SD1000KIT—no pun intended—is an unbeatable kit.

For a full-featured electronic drum kit with a variety of sounds at a reasonable price, check out the Simmons SD1000KIT. Order today from Musician's Friend and get our 45-Day Total Satisfaction and Lowest Price Guarantees.

MSRP

Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Price ("MSRP") is the suggested retail selling price of a product provided to us by manufacturers. We may commonly sell products at prices lower than MSRP and, for any given product, no sales may have occurred at MSRP. MSRP is a benchmark to compare our discounts from MSRP to pricing offered by other retailers. Whether other retailers sell at MSRP will vary by product, geographic location, type of store, and over time. Although we periodically update the MSRPs posted in our stores, direct mail offerings, and on our website as we receive them, in some cases manufacturers may change a suggested retail price without notice to us. Please contact the manufacturer of a specific product for the most up-to-date MSRP information. MSRPs quoted for house or private label brands are developed internally in consideration of comparable name brand products. We may commonly sell such products at prices lower than MSRP and, for any given product, no sales may have occurred at MSRP. Although our limited time events are intended to be limited time events, our low prices offered during these events may continue in effect after the event.

Limited Quantities

Some products, including those identified as Hot Buys, Closeouts, Limited Quantity items, Factory B-Stocks, and Free Gifts may be limited to stock on hand and are offered on a first come, first served basis.

Mailing List

Our mailing list is occasionally made available to carefully screened companies whose products may be of interest to our customers. If you'd like your name and address removed from this shared list, please call our customer service center at 800-217-5207. Receiving duplicate catalogs? Send us all of the mailing labels and indicate which one is correct. Send to: Musician's Friend, Customer Service, P.O. Box 1117, Draper, UT 84020-1117. Please note that these requests may take up to eight (8) weeks to take effect, particularly if we are removing your name from our postal mailings.

GOLD COVERAGE

PROTECT YOUR PURCHASE!

Now you can get added warranty protection for your new gear with Gold Coverage that steps in where the manufacturer's "normal wear and tear" ends. This plan extends and expands your coverage up to 3 years.

- In addition to normal wear and tear, Gold Coverage protects you against damage caused by spills, drops, impacts, dust, internal heat, humidity, heavy usage, even lightning and power surges.
- Gold Coverage is transferable from the original owner, adding value even if you plan to sell your gear down the road.
- No Lemon Policy on gear over $200 – if it fails for the same reason more than 3 times, it is replaced on the fourth breakdown.
- Complete refund in the event of failure or substandard performance on gear under $200.
- Manufacturer's Specs Coverage: The product need not fail to be covered. If it does not perform as it did the first day you bought it, it will be repaired or replaced.
- Great service: The plan is administered by National Electronics Warranty Co. (NEW) offering 24-hour-a-day, toll-free professional services. Repairs are made only at factory-authorized service centers. In most cases, there's one in your nearest metropolitan area. If you're too far away, NEW pays the shipping!

Control Screen Drumheads

Are you convinced that Rubber or Silicone feels more real than an actual drumhead? Real electronic drums start with drumheads. Control Screen drumsheads use a proprietary mesh material that maintains incredible feel, remarkable sensitivity, durability, and virtually silent operation. Hart uses Aquarian drumheads to manufacture heads with a perfect collar to fit naturally around all acoustic drums shells. Magnum series heads are recommended for rack and floor toms and provide a full and suppressed feel. They can be optimally tightened between low and high tensions. Maxxum series heads are recommended for snare and kick drums and offer a dry crisp feel while maintaining extremely high tensions. Both heads on a kit offers snare and tom response variation. Use Kontol Screen heads with acoustic drum triggers and turn your acoustic drums into a quiet natural feeling electronic drum kit. Convert your drum kit at a reduced price. 445444 price starting at $29.99

Relay G30 Digital Wireless System

Professional dependability, and refreshing simplicity.

It provides a signal so pure that guitars produce beautiful high-end sparkle and basses explode with thunderous low-end punch at distances up to 98'. Clarity rivals that of the highest-quality guitar cables. Traditional wireless systems compromise their sound by rolling off crucial high- and low-end frequencies and compressing their signals. Relay G30 offers full bandwidth and zero compression. Superior 118dB dynamic range. 8-hour battery life.

502387 MSRP $419.99 $299⁹⁹

Relay G50 Digital Wireless System

Same as 502387 with a metal stompbox-style receiver, 200-foot range, 120dB dynamic range, tuner pass-thru, and LCD displays.

Relay G55 Digital Wireless Guitar System

Same as 502387 with twice as many compatible channels, triple the line-of-sight distance reliability, XLR output, a more detailed LCD display, and other pro features.

A. BETA SERIES

Rugged and road-ready mics. The Beta Series from Shure are built withstand the road and the abuse that comes with a traveling musician. These warm, natural-sounding mics provide maximum isolation and high gain before feedback, which makes them great for any stage. These mics are engineered to reproduce fine details in the most demanding environments.

B. e 835

Outstanding combination of affordability, build quality, and performance. Designed for stage use, it gives vocals a solid sound with good projection. A gentle presence boost provides clarity without sounding unnatural. Minimal proximity effect means good overall tonal balance without over-accentuating low frequencies as you move closer to the capsule.

C. e 935

Professionally developed to cut through high onstage sound levels. Rugged metal body with advanced shock mount design takes what the road dishes out for years of reliable service. Consistent on/off-axis response minimizes feedback problems and makes performance easier. Hum-compensating coil reduces noise and allows for longer leads. Made in Germany. Includes carry pouch and mic clip.

A live performance vocal mic designed for singers in high-volume bands. The supercardioid polar pattern ensures maximum gain before feedback and a crisp sound that cuts through every mix. The dual shock mount eliminates any kind of mechanical noise for trouble-free live use

E. SM58

The world's most popular vocal mic. This mic has not only helped define the sound of rock vocals on stage, it's also been used as a hammer to build stages and gone on to perform flawlessly later at the gig. Using a club's house system? You'll likely be singing through an SM58. And in the studio? Daniel Lanois often uses the SM58 or Beta 58 on Bono's vocals.
